PRESIDENTIAL FAREWELL

BY JOSEPH ZEMLIN

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Combatant Craft Crewman Association, I write to you today with profound gratitude and humility as I reflect on the honor it has been to serve as your President.

Leading this Association—built by warriors, sustained by selfless volunteers, and united by an unbreakable bond forged through service, sacrifice, and shared history—has been one of the greatest privileges of my life. To stand in support of our community, to preserve the legacy of the Combatant Craft Crewman, and to help strengthen the ties that bind us across generations commands a responsibility I have never taken lightly. It is my sincere belief that a mutual respect for each generation's contributions is necessary to honor our past and forge our future.

Each of you, whether active, retired, family, or friend, plays a vital role in the life of this Association. Your commitment to remembering our fallen, mentoring our young, and honoring our operators, technicians, teammates, and craft is what gives this organization its soul. You are the heartbeat of the CCCA, and I have been deeply inspired by your resilience, compassion, and unwavering loyalty for over a decade.

Together, we've achieved meaningful progress—advancing scholarships, preserving our history, supporting families in need, and elevating the visibility of our quiet professionals. But beyond the accomplishments, it is the fellowship, the stories, and the sense of shared purpose that will forever stay with me.

Moreover, I genuinely believe that the next President needs to be someone who can better represent and communicate with our newer SWCCs and their families. They need to see that connection and find value in our charitable vision.

As we continue this mission, I remain committed to serving wherever I am needed, and I have every confidence in the strength, leadership, and future of this Association. Thank you for the trust you have placed in me and for allowing me the extraordinary privilege of leading a brotherhood I love deeply.

With honor and respect,

JOSEPH JOHN ZEMLIN
CWO4, USN (RET.)

GENERAL ANNOUNCEMENT: PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

AUGUST 1, 2025

To All Members of the Combatant Craft Crewman Association,

We are pleased to announce the opening of the election cycle for the position of President of the Combatant Craft Crewman Association, Inc. (CCCA). Per the Association's Bylaws, this election will determine the next President to serve a three-year term beginning in November 2025.

The President serves as both the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the Association and the Chairman of the Executive Board and Board of Directors. This position carries the responsibility of leading our 501(c)(3) charitable organization, preserving the mission, and championing the legacy and welfare of the Combatant Craft Crewman community.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES (AS OUTLINED IN THE BYLAWS):

- Serve as the principal executive officer of the Association
- Presiding over all meetings of the Executive Board and Board of Directors
- Oversee the implementation of all Association programs and initiatives
- Ensure compliance with 501(c)(3) governance standards and nonprofit laws
- Represent the CCCA in public forums and official correspondence

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES (AS OUTLINED IN THE BYLAWS):

- Nomination Period: September 1–15, 2025
- Election Voting Period: October 1–15, 2025
- Announcement of Election Results: During the October Board of Directors Meeting
- Transition of Leadership: The elected President will formally assume office after the November 2025 Board Meeting.

We encourage all qualified and dedicated members who wish to lead and continue advancing the CCCA's mission to consider submitting their candidacy during the nomination window.

Further details regarding the nomination process and election logistics will be shared in the coming weeks. In the meantime, if you have any questions or wish to express early interest, please get in touch with me at President@combatantcraftcrewman.org

With honor and appreciation,

JOSEPH JOHN ZEMLIN

CWO4, USN (RET.)

PRESIDENT, COMBATANT CRAFT CREWMAN ASSOCIATION, INC.

CHIEF SPECIAL WARFARE BOAT OPERATOR ROBERT C. JENNINGS

Chief Jennings grew up in West Plains, MO. He was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout from the Boy Scouts of America in July 2000, graduated from West Plains High School in May 2001, and enlisted in the US Navy's Delayed Entry Program after terrorists attacked America on 9-11.

In November 2003, he graduated from SWCC School as GM3 (SWCC) and reported to Naval Special Clearance Team One (NSCT-I) in Coronado, CA. While attached to NSCT-I, he served as Heavy Weapons Gunner, Navigator, Radio Operator, Chief Engineer, and Coxswain for Delta Platoon, deployed for purpose four times to EUCOM and PACOM in support of the Global War on Terror and earned both Basic Parachutist Insignia and the Navy and Marine Corps Parachutist Insignia.

In January 2006, he departed Coronado, CA as a GM2 (SWCC/PJ) and reported to Special Boat Team Twenty-Two (SBT-22) in Stennis, MS. While attached to SBT-22, he served as a Heavy Weapons Gunner, Armorer, Radio Operator, Advanced Special Operations (ASO) operator, Chief Engineer, and Coxswain for Special Operations Craft Riverine Detachment Alpha, Deployed to Iraq three times in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation New Dawn, and earned the Enlisted Expeditionary Warfare specialist qualifications.

In June 2011, he departed Stennis, MS, as an SBI (SWCC/EXW/PJ) and reported to Special Boat Team Twelve (SBT-12) in Coronado, CA. While attached to SBT-12, he served as Boat Crew Leader for Rigid-hull Inflatable Boat Detachment Lima, deployed two times to CENTCOM in support of the Global War on Terror, and earned the SWCC Boat Captain Designation, the Small Craft Insignia, and a USCG 100-Ton Captains License.

In November 2017, he departed Coronado, CA, and reported to Special Boat Team Twenty (SBT-20) in Virginia Beach, VA. While attached to SBT-20, he served as the Leading Petty Officer for Combatant Craft Heavy Detachment Romeo, and deployed for purpose five times to CENTCOM in support of the Global War on Terror.

On September 16th, 2020, he was advanced to Chief Petty Officer, and he deployed to Iraq as the Operations Chief for a Combined Joint Special Operations Task Force in support of Operation Inherent Resolve.

In November 2022, Chief Jennings reported to Naval Special Warfare Group Four (NSWG-4) in Virginia Beach, VA. While attached to NSWG-4, he served as the Functional Area Manager for the CCM & SOC-R programs and as an Underway Test & Evaluator.

Chief Jennings has earned an Associate's Degree from Cincinnati University, a Bachelor's Degree from Excelsior University, and a Master's Degree from the University of Charleston.

Chief Jennings' awards include three Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medals, seven Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medals (two with Combat "V"), the Army Achievement Medal with Combat "C", three Combat Action Ribbons, and various other unit, campaign, and personal awards.

SECOND CLASS PETTY OFFICERS FOR SWCCS CLASS 131

BY PHIL GARN

CCCA Historian Phil Garn and SWCC Class 131 during the "History Lesson" taken by Bob Bolger at the Monument

The day before SWCC graduations, CCCA and Vietnam Unit Memorial Monument Foundation members have been providing a "History Lesson" for the new SWCCs.

If the weather is nice, and it usually is, we'll do it on and in the historic craft at the Vietnam Unit Memorial Monument. This is so the graduates have a better connection with their NSW past and to introduce them to the Vietnam boats with all the weapons some of which they are now very familiar and strengthen connections.

The information flows both ways, and we learn about changes in training, such as parachute qualification and SERE, which are now part of SWCC training, as well as what's happening in the Fleet. After the history lesson on the ride home, Vietnam Swift Boat Captain Bob Bolger and I noticed a lot of Second-Class Petty Officers in this class of twenty men. In the past, Chiefs would undergo SWCC training, and it was not uncommon to have a few senior men with prior experience. When I commented on this, all Bob could say was, "We'll find out tomorrow." [1]

Sure enough, the next day, six of the twenty were Second Class Petty Officers, thirteen seamen, and a seaman apprentice, with a large number of family members from this larger class of twenty men, including the School House cadre, the XO of Basic Training Command, and Lieutenant Commander William Winger, SEAL.

CWO3 Alex Marks, School House OIC, ran a tight ship as the master of ceremonies, and LCDR Winner did not miss a beat with his introductory remarks, including stories and comments about each and every graduate. CWO4 Dan Taylor was the featured speaker and delivered his classic speech (see previous issue of On Target).

LCDR Winner noted that this would be CWO4 Taylor's last class and that he had put 237 men and women through SWCC training during his tenure at the School House. [2]

[1] Typically, the Commanding Officer of NSW Basic Training Command provides the introductory remarks, pins the WARBOATs on the graduates, and presents the Ouellet Award with the Command Master Chief; senior NSW leadership from the Boat Teams, other NSW commands, and even an admiral will also be present in attendance.

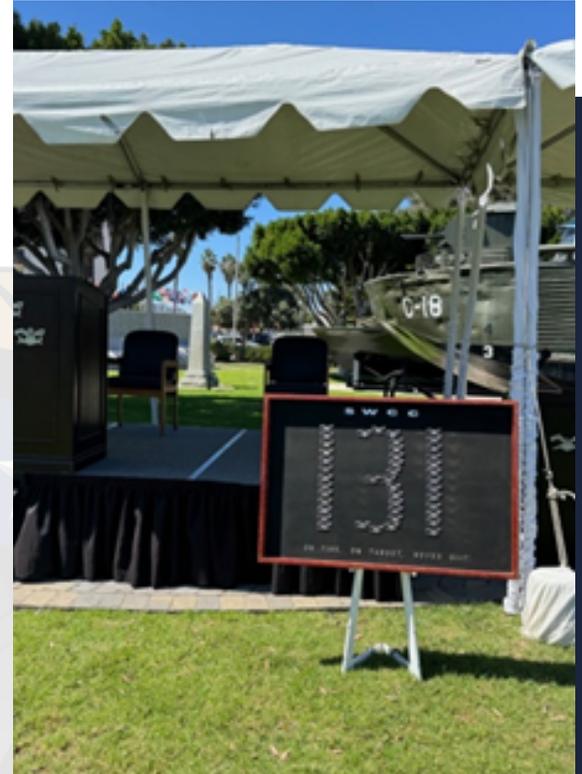

[2] This number is roughly one-third of the active duty SWCCs.

As Command Master Chief Tony Palmer and LCDR Winner pinned on the WARBOATs, there was tremendous applause and lots of cheering from the families and friends. As an aside, a few graduates will have big cheering sections, but Class 131 seemed to have been especially enthusiastic audience compared to prior graduations.

After the ceremonies, Bob Bolger and I proceeded to give tours on the Vietnam Monument boats. One thing I've noted is that for parents, there is a foreboding sense of dread for their children due to the belief that if they enlist in the military, they will die.

Thankfully, due to the intense training, teamwork, professionalism, history, and heritage that all begin at the School House, the parents do get a sense of reassurance to learn that of the many names on the Vietnam monument who were killed in action, only four are from our forefathers at BSU 1.

SWCC CLASS 132

FIFTEEN NEW MARINER COMMANDOS

BY PHIL GARN

On November 7, 2024, fifteen new SWCCs received their WARBOATS as the newest additions to Naval Special Warfare on the grounds of the Vietnam Unit Memorial Monument at the Naval Amphibious Base, Coronado.

Starting with twenty-three<sup>[1]</sup> students, Class 132 graduated 15 men after 32 weeks of intensive training including Alpha, Bravo and Charlie Phases. These young men came from a variety of backgrounds including a number of Petty Officers from the Fleet.

During the history lesson the day before, both Chuck Chaldekas and I had the opportunity to speak with one of the new SWCCs who had come from Maritime Expeditionary Security Force (the current title for Naval Coastal Warfare, previously Coastal Riverine Forces), who stated “There is no comparison and SWCC is far and away a much better job!”

Keeping with tradition, Captain John Garrett (SEAL), Commanding Officer of NSW Basic training Command acknowledge each and every man by name and told stories; of particular note was a story involving the entire class:

The SWCC instructors made a bet with Class 132 that if all six randomly selected students passed their navigation course, then the instructors would have to get wet. The whole class passed, so the instructors decided to go all in. The instructors told the students to select their best swimmer, who would then swim against an instructor in a high-stakes bet. Unbeknownst to the students, however, the instructor had been a water polo player, and ultimately won handily, so no instructors got wet. the moral of the story is that the instructors pretty much always win.

NSW Group 4 Commodore John T Green (SEAL Captain) was the featured speaker who spoke about SWCCs being the premier “mariner commandos” who are first and foremost mariners and highly adaptable commando operators. They also need to be innovators with expertise in autonomous systems, software, and robotic integration. They must also stalk invisibly in the shadows and amplify every asymmetric advantage: The US Navy counts on SWCCs. Our Allies admire SWCCs and our enemies fear SWCCs.

CWO 4 Alex Marks, SWCC Training Center (School House) Officer in Charge, did a magnificent job as master of ceremonies, and Command Master Chief Tony Plamer was there with Captain Garrett and Commodore Green pinning the WARBOATS on each man’s chest as well as presenting the Seaman David Ouellet award to the honor man. Per tradition, the instructor cadre heartily welcomes the SWCCs into the community behind the tents, where friends and families await.

[1] As rollbacks enter and leave the phases at different times. 132 would start with 23 candidates in the Alpha Phase, with 13 completing this first phase. During the Bravo Phase, the class picked up 7 rollbacks, completing the phase with a total of 17. During Charlie Phase, the class picked up two more, and 17 completed the phase.

SWCC CLASS 133 GRADUATES 13 NEW MEN FOR NSW SPECIAL BOAT TEAMS

On February 27, 2025, thirteen new SWCCs received their WARBOATs and joined the ranks of Naval Special Warfare operators.[1] They were honored by ten men from SWCC Class 33, including the class's Principal Speaker, Master Chief Joaquin Martinez, SWCC, and currently the Command Master Chief for the Naval Special Warfare Center.

The day before the graduation, Class 133 met with CCCA Historian Phil Garn and Vietnam Unit Memorial Monument (VUMM) President and CCCA board member Chuck Chaldekas and former Vietnam PCF boat captain Bob Bolger for the VUMM at Naval Amphibious Base, Coronado for the History Lesson.

More than half the class came from the Fleet with a wide variety of assignments, including a diver and a rescue swimmer with over 1,000 flight hours, and a Seaman who Bob noted already had a combat action ribbon.[2]

During his introductory remarks at the graduation, Captain John Garrett, SEAL Commanding Officer for Naval Special Warfare Training Command, told us of the tragic loss of SBPO 1 Johnny Becerra (you may have seen him in the SWCC: Making of an Operator video documentary).

Captain Garrett, SBCM Martinez, and CMC Tony Palmer pinned on the WARBOATs as CWO4 Alex Marks, SWCC Training Center Officer in Charge, kept the program moving as Master of Ceremonies. The leadership cadre also presented the Seaman David G. Ouellet award to the class honor man.

In addition to the friends and family, ten Class 33 men attended the ceremony of their centenary class, as well as many other luminaries, including SBMCs Steve Babb (Helmsman) and SBMC Ryan Gray (CMC Group 4), Commodore Group 4, Captain Tim Sulick SEAL(Former CO of Center). Class 33 also handed out very unique challenge coins honoring Class 133.

Memorial for SWCC Instructor SB1 Johnny Becerra.

He was greatly admired by all and will be missed.

[1] The class started with 39 men and was graduating 13 (about 33%). The training continues to be tough. These young men pushed through adversity to strive for excellence.

[2] A few of these young men volunteered additional time to help keep up the VUMM on top of their grueling curriculum.

SWCC CLASS 134 "SLED DOGS"

BY PHIL GARN

At the conclusion of The Tour, legendary SWCC Instructor Johnny Becerra took a knee and told the men of Class 134 they were "Sled Dogs." An extremely rare compliment from an exceptional Instructor.

For Class 134, Sam Brown and the Cadre at the School House worked out a new change for the History Lesson with Chuck Chaldekas and the crew at the Vietnam Unit Memorial Monument.

As the CO wanted to spend more time with the graduating students the day before graduation, on Wednesday, the History Lesson was moved to Tuesday and was incorporated with a public service at the monument.

Class 134 would start helping the VUMMF work crew prepping the monument for their graduation, mowing, raking and mopping the boats and grounds. Then they would have the history lesson. This new format paid big dividends on several levels. Though men from previous classes had volunteered time to help with the monument, the whole class pitched in giving them sweat equity and increasing their connection to past generations of boat guys.

School House OIC CWO4 Alex Marks, SWCC, served as Master of Ceremonies and Basic Training Command Executive Officer, Lieutenant Commander William Winger filled in for Captain John Garrett in delivering the introductory remarks. SWCC leadership was in attendance, including CWO5 Gary Luna, CWO4 Hank Taylor, as well as Captain Burke, Commodore for NSW Training, and more. LCDR Winger welcomed the SWCC operators past and present and affirmed Class 134 had earned their WARBOAT honoring their forebearers from WWII and Vietnam.

Master Chief Benjamin Hartwell, SWCC, was the Principal Speaker. CMC Hartwell was also a graduate of Class 34.[1] CMC Hartwell acknowledged Class 134's call to service and volunteering for special operations. He reminded them of their heritage, encouraged the class to seek further education, and said that they might be briefing foreign leaders. They must, he added, prepare educationally, physically, and emotionally for meeting peers like China and Russia, as well as other adversaries.

[1] CMC Hartwell served at SBT22 and Special Operations Command Africa and had a previous tour as CMC at NAVSCIATTS.

SWCC CLASS 135 A NEW DIRTY DOZEN

BY PHIL GARN

SWCC Class 135 graduated twelve new men on July 17, 2025, at the Vietnam Unit Memorial Monument. As featured speaker and Commanding Officer of Special Boat Team 12, Commander John “Scott” McCray (SEAL) emphasized Special Boat Teams (SBTs) are in the forefront of increasing the Fleet’s lethality and survivability in technologically denied areas but are the tip of the spear for our entire armed services and working with multi domain forces such as Space Force and Cybercommand.

SWCCs are using the stealth, seamanship and experience of the past and combining it with cutting edge technologies to dominate a battle space where there is no sanctuary and no quarter. They are the “advance forward” in several areas where they are the tip of the spear.

Two days prior to graduation, Class 135 put some sweat equity getting the Vietnam Unit Memorial Monument ship shape make that boat shape, along with VUMMF members and visiting SWCC Veteran Chief Robin “Mac” McKinney who pitched in to mow and blow, rake, edge and swab.

The history flows both ways as we impart our experiences and boat unit history, while we learn about the newest SWCCs and what’s going on in today’s Fleet. A couple of the men were literally just out of high school in fact one turned 18 during training while another was thirty-three years old who was looking for something meaningful to do. Those men from the Fleet always have a variety of experiences and backgrounds including aviation ordnance.

The late Petty Officer Johnny Beccera, the hammer of Alpha Phase, was a huge influence on Class 135 and pushed them to the fullest. Petty Officer Beccera was highly respected and had a massive influence on the SBTs, the epitome of a quiet professional and a role model for the entire instructor staff, exacting leaders and strong mentors.

STEVE BABB ADDRESSES OLD FROGS AND SEALS' FEBRUARY MEETING

BY PHIL GARN

Master Chief Steve Babb spoke at the February meeting of Old Frogs and SEALs in the Coronado Yacht Club.

Captain Todd Perry (SEAL, retired) introduced Master Chief Babb as the Helmsman (the senior active duty SWCC), and gave a brief synopsis of Steve's impressive career, his many Command Master Chief tours (which included the School House and NSW Unit 1), as well as his combat tour with DEVGRU when he was with SBT 22.

Master Chief Babb spoke about SWCC history and how important it was to close the loop with the community in 1994, following the loss of significant talent since Vietnam.

Because of this, he emphasized the importance of various SWCC milestones, such as the appointment of the first Chief Warrant Officer in 2003 and achieving our own SB rate in 2006. An additional milestone he noted was when we finally received the SWCC pin we wanted in 2016, which is now known as the Warboat (analogous to the SEAL Trident), as well as the unique heraldry of the three separate devices. He also announced that the latest SWCC class just finished the Tour earlier in the day and secured with a "no bell class." [1] That got a lot of Hooyahs from the audience.

Concluding the discussion, Steve provided us with some information about what is currently happening in the community: Approximately half of the new SWCC students hold college degrees, and an observation that SWCCs and SEALs in particular are becoming increasingly tech-savvy, though he lamented that the Navy could use three times the number of SWCCs that we have today.

Steve related this to the mission to increase the Fleet's lethality and survivability in denied areas. Finally, he confirmed Rear Admiral Sands' comments about machine-on-machine fighting and teaming manned and unmanned capabilities.

SWCC Master Chief Steve Babb speaking at the Old Frogs and SEALs meeting. Also in attendance are CCA members, Tim Dowd and Chuck Chaldekas, as well as retired SEAL Captains Todd Perry and Bob Schoultz.

[1] In the SWCC and SEAL communities, a "no bell" class is a term meaning that no class members quit during the "Hell Week" portion of training.

VISITING BOAT GUYS ON THE GULF COAST

BY PHIL GARN

At USMI with Paul, Bruce Lemmert, Bary Dreyfus and me with a SOC-R under construction in the background.

In December 2024, I had a historical paper on combat swimming accepted by the Society for Military History for its annual conference in March 2025, to be held in Mobile, Alabama. Knowing that I would be returning to the Gulf Coast, I began contacting local boat guys to plan some extra visits while I was there and possibly attend SBT-22 at Stennis.

After flying into New Orleans, I had lunch with Paul “Doc” Niehaus from CCCA Region 2 and Andrew Jackson Higgins historian Jerry Strahan. [1]

The next day, Region 2 Manager Bruce Lemmert picked me up and drove to Gulfport, Mississippi, where we met with Paul and Barry Dreyfus at USMI. Barry was gracious enough to take the time to meet with us and show us a little of the production line before we all broke for lunch prior to heading back to the Big Easy.

I then headed over to Mobile, about a two-hour drive, for the conference. On my last trip, I’d missed David Rawls, but this time I was able to get together with him for lunch at Daufins on top of the Telmark Building, along with my long-time friend and fellow historian, Kevin Ruffner. During the get-together, David shared stories about patching up PTF-26 with Bruce, Paul, and the Gulf Coast Brothers the previous year.

The conference went very well, and I had the opportunity to meet several interesting historians while presenting my paper. Overall, it was an exciting opportunity.

Afterwards, it was back to New Orleans, where Chris “G-Wiz” Gaidanowiz from SBT-22, now a contractor at NACSCIATTS, sponsored Paul, Bruce, and myself to visit Stennis. Chris was extremely generous and shared a lot with us, and we got to see the other commands. It was quite a different base than SBU-11 that I’d visited a few times when I was at SBU-13 many moons ago, reminding me more of an Army base than say Camp Pendleton or Camp Lejeune.

[1] Jerry wrote the book on Higgins, saved many of the Higgins plans and is very involved with the World War II Museum in New Orleans as well as was an executive with Lucky Dogs.

CCCA SUPPORTS SEAL MUSEUM SAN DIEGO

BY PHIL GARN

Exterior photo of the SEAL Museum San Diego at 1001 Kettner Boulevard from across the street.

A few years ago, I was invited to a museum launch party in a downtown San Diego high-rise with some teammates.

In December 2023, SWCC Veteran Josh Hummel and I went to the new museum spaces which were part of the old Museum of Modern Art to meet with SEAL Veteran Todd Perry, then Executive Director of the museum. We came up with some ideas that we sketched out.

We also went on a large-scale model hunt for SWCC craft as well as a real or reproduction M-134 mini-gun for display. Modelers like SWCC Veterans Ted Walther, James Looper, Alan Sandoval, and Rich “Killer” Killingsworth volunteered to help, along with support from Barry Dreyfus of USMI and his engineers. However, we soon learned that 3-D printing has proved much more challenging and expensive than we expected.

With a proposed November 2024 opening, we went with plan B, photos of significant craft, again selecting the best of the best from SWCC Veterans, ranging from Alan Sandoval (MST-1 Vietnam) to more modern craft on operations from Ed Drieman, Bobby Taylor, and Hector Mieczkowski which were enhanced by SWCC veteran and fine-artist, Sean Cordes.

NSW Historian Dr. Pedro Louerio and PAO Mike Rainey helped tune up our rough captions which were cleared by NSW before being laid out by Gallagher & Associates (the design team who did the World War Two Museum in New Orleans).

There will be a lot more SWCC oriented displays both inside and outside the museum including, giant photos of current craft in action and SWCCs on the “Tour” as well as a Medal of Honor display with the five legacy SWCCs and CWO-5 Gary Luna SWCC

CCCA SUPPORTS SEAL MUSEUM SAN DIEGO

BY PHIL GARN

The museum staff worked for months with CCCA to stand up this campaign and design it specifically for SWCC. Adjustments were made for the first 30 years, when there were no SWCC classes, resulting in the different eras of SWCC: Boat Support Units, Coastal River Squadrons, and Special Boat Squadrons.

Josh Hummel volunteered to do a kickoff video short with me (thankfully Josh condensed a lot with Matt Schiff's help) filmed by Matt Schiff and Kim Rhinehelder with Beef, my wife Lisa and nephew Stephan Vaquero cheering from the side lines at the SWCC display case in One America Plaza across the street from the museum.

Overall, the launch has been very successful; however, we need everyone to network and spread the word to SWCCs from all generations. It's also a good time to connect with your teammates for a good cause, so reach out to friends, family, colleagues, and employers and let them know about the museum.

The SEAL Museum San Deigo is under construction with a projected opening of October 4, 2025.
